Formation and Training of a SWAT special anti riot unit

SWAT special anti riot unit

Since 2001, the world is increasingly exposed to terror attacks, violence and acts of aggression generated by extreme radical groups.

The problem:

The implication:

Police forces are exposed to well planned and well trained terror attacks increasing exponentially, The Lac of Knowhow in handling and sustaining order, derives more casualties and by consequence escalation in the problem as well as high cost, political loss as well as high-cost lawsuits which consume millions of dollars from public sector budgets. This implicates the need of highly trained anti-terror and anti-riot Police Special units SWAT that consume millions of dollars from public sector budgets.
